

1. **Describe your academic interests and how you plan to pursue them at UF.**

- Response:

"I have always been passionate about environmental science, particularly the impact of climate change on coastal communities. At UF, I plan to take advantage of the interdisciplinary programs offered by the College of Agricultural and Life Sciences and participate in research opportunities at the Florida Coastal Everglades Long-Term Ecological Research site. I envision myself contributing to sustainable solutions that benefit both nature and society."

2. **Discuss a challenge you've faced and how it influenced your growth.**

- Response:

"During my junior year, I struggled with balancing academics and my role as a caregiver for my younger siblings. This experience taught me resilience and time management. I found ways to optimize my study habits and learned the importance of seeking help, which led me to excel in my coursework and prepare thoroughly for college. This challenge has shaped me into a more empathetic and organized individual."

3. **How do you contribute to your community, and what does community mean to you?**

- Response:

"Community, to me, is about coming together to support one another. I volunteer at the local food bank every weekend, where I help distribute meals to families in need. This experience has not only allowed me to give back but has also given me a profound understanding of food insecurity issues. I believe that at UF, I can continue my commitment to community service by joining service-oriented student organizations."

4. **What unique perspectives or experiences would you bring to UF?**

- Response:

"Growing up in a multicultural environment has equipped me with a unique perspective on diversity. I have engaged with various cultural traditions and have observed how they shape individual identities. At UF, I would bring this perspective to campus by sharing my experiences through cultural exchange events and contributing to conversations about inclusivity, enriching the university's diverse community."

5. **Describe a significant event that sparked your interest in a particular field of study.**

- Response:

"A summer internship at a local hospital catalyzed my interest in nursing. Witnessing the dedication of healthcare professionals and their direct impact on patient lives inspired me to pursue a career in nursing. I intend to join the nursing program at UF, where I can gain further skills and knowledge to make a meaningful difference in healthcare."
